Re: Docket No. 2004-219-E

Dear Mrs. Weaver:

Thank you for your letter dated June 4, 2007 and faxed to us this morning, June 5. You have repeated your request for copies of ex parte communications between our office and the other parties to your dispute with Progress Energy.

On December 18, 2006, you faxed a letter to us pertaining to your dispute with Progress. Because it was not apparent from the face of the letter whether you had sent copies to the other parties, and to protect you and the Commission from any possible inference of impermissible ex parte communication, we sent copies of your letter to Counsel for Progress Energy and the Office of Regulatory Staff and requested that they send responses, if any, to our offices no later than noon on December 21, 2006. Mr. Anthony and Ms. Hudson responded with letters by e-mail. You previously received copies of these communications from the parties and from our office, but for your convenience, we have included additional copies of them with this letter. None of the communications in this exchange was inappropriate in any way, and none meets the definition of an ex parte communication. It was Mr. Anthony's letter that informed the Commission of the proceedings in the ongoing civil action pending in the Court of Common Pleas.

Very respectfully,

B. Randall Dong
Staff Counsel

RE: Docket No. 2004-219-E

Dear Mr. Dong:

This letter is in response to your email dated December 20, 2006 requesting a response to a filing made by Beatrice Weaver with the Commission on December 18, 2006. I refer you to Progress Energy Carolinas, Inc.'s filing dated September 12, 2006, received by the Commission on September 15, 2006, for a complete explanation of PEC's position with regard to this matter.

An issue that Mrs. Weaver continues to either overlook or ignore with regard to her request is that she has the ability to have electric service restored to her home at any time by simply paying the outstanding balance on her and her husband's account. There has never been any assertion or any indication that Mrs. Weaver is not financially able to pay her electric bill. Rather, she has refused to pay her electric bill. It is her choice that she does not have electricity at her home. If electricity is needed in order to address her medical condition and she still wishes to dispute the bill in question, she should pay the bill, have service restored, and then file a complaint against PEC to address the situation.

Also, as you may know, PEC filed suit against Mrs. Weaver well over a year ago in an attempt to bring this matter to closure. However, every trial date that has been set by the court has been continued at the request of Mrs. Weaver.

Yours very truly,

/s/
